

Retailers To Sell Bonds, Stamps On July 1; Study Duties In OPA Rules

Adams county's retail store owners have added two new duties to the agenda of work facing them in the war effort. Meeting in the fire engine house Monday evening, under the sponsorship of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, the retailers learned what their duties will be under Office of Price Administration regulations and then, in a short session held after the price control discussion, voted to halt all activity in their stores at 12 o'clock noon, July 1, for a fifteen minute period during which the only sales will be defense bonds and stamps.

Mares Sherman, president of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, presided at the meeting.

Charles W. Wood, of the Philadelphia office of the O. P. A., led the discussion in regard to establishment of maximum prices. About 50 retailers and a few wholesalers were present for the meeting.

7 BOYS WARNED ABOUT CONDUCT; TOLD TO GET JOBS

With the recommendation that they get jobs—not only to perform their patriotic duty in the war emergency but to make it unlikely that they would continue loitering about town streets all hours of the night—Burgess Fred G. Pfeffer issued reprimands and warnings to six youths and fined a seventh $1 after hearings Monday evening on disorderly conduct charges brought by Borough Officer Charles W. Culp.

Most of the youths arraigned before Burgess Pfeffer in his office in the engine house Monday evening were from Gettysburg. The others, live near town. All were minors and their ages ranged from 16 to 20 years.

Nightly Complaints

Officer Culp testified that complaints about rowdiness, loud and boisterous talk and fighting on center square and other points near the center of town during late night and early morning hours have been received almost nightly. Saturday and Sunday nights usually bring extra complaints from hotel and apartment house occupants near the square. Warnings have been issued on numerous occasions but have not been heeded, the officer stated.

He said the seven were ordered to appear before the burgess after (Please Turn to Page 2)

FIREMEN TO OPEN BAZAAR

Arrangements are being completed today for the annual food sale and bazaar of the Gettysburg Fire company which will open Wednesday evening and continue each evening for the remainder of the week at the engine house on East Middle street.

Concerts by the Blue and Gray band have been scheduled for each evening.

Soups and hot and cold sandwiches and other refreshments will be on sale each evening, although no full-course suppers will be offered this year.

All of the usual amusements and games will be arranged for the entertainment of the crowds expected to patronize the annual event.

The membership of the fire company has been assigned to various committee jobs for the food sale and festival and committee chairmen report all is in readiness for the opening night.

88 Lost In Sinking Of Freighter

An East Coast Port, June 23 (AP)—Two torpedoes fired in quick succession by an enemy submarine sank a medium-sized American freighter in three minutes off the coast on June 15 with a possible loss of 88 lives—the heaviest in American coastal waters since the United States entered the war—the Navy announced today.

Of the 88, the Navy announced that two are known dead and 86 are missing.

The ship sank so rapidly—listing between 70 and 75 degrees just before she went under—that none of the craft's 10 lifeboats could be launched and deck guns could not be fired.

Many of the 88 reported missing apparently were trapped in cabins below decks as the attack came at night, while many of the crew were not on deck duty. The rescued, some of whom got away on life rafts, were picked up by vessels which were nearby when the attack occurred.

MRS. DEARDORFF, INJURED IN FALL, EXPIRES TODAY

Mary Eleanor Power Deardorff, wife of J. Allen Deardorff, 312 Baltimore street, died at the Warner hospital at 11 o'clock this morning. Pulmonary embolism was the cause of death.

Mrs. Deardorff suffered a severe fracture of the left arm near the shoulder last May 26 when she slipped accidentally in the basement of her home and fell to the concrete floor. At first her condition was not thought serious but complications developed and last Saturday her condition took a turn for the worse.

For several days Mrs. Deardorff was in an oxygen tent and although her condition was critical she remained in a conscious state and directed her husband to take care of personal matters up to this morning. Her last request concerned her personal jewelry and items in her safety deposit box.

While her husband was performing the last request Mrs. Deardorff passed away.

Wrote Poetry

The deceased was born in Gettysburg, February 14, 1885. She was a daughter of the late Professor Martin and Mary L. Bushman Power. Her father was born in Ireland and her mother was born in Adams county.

Professor Power was head of the local parochial school for many years and taught Mrs. Deardorff when she first entered school.

Mrs. Deardorff attended Gettysburg academy and Gettysburg college, leaving the latter institution to assume charge of household (Please Turn to Page 2)

COUNTY CHERRY CROP UNDER '41

The 1942 yield of sour cherries in the Adams county area will be about 75 per cent of the 1941 yield, according to estimates made by individual growers who attended a meeting of West-Virginia and Pennsylvania cherry growers on Monday evening at the court house here. Fifty growers attended with John Peters, gardeners R. D. temporary chairman of the cherry growers' organization, presided with George L. Baugher serving as secretary.

Mr. Peters reported that according to U. S. Department of Agriculture crop estimate figures, the 1942 cherry crop is 908,000 tons as compared to a crop of 824,000 tons for 1941.

Domestic Supply Cut

An important factor to bear in mind is the fact that there will be fewer cherries for domestic consumption this year because government requirements will be large, it was pointed out. A ceiling price on canned products will include cherries, and growers should recognize this fact, the group was told.

Mr. Peters explained that as a result of a cherry growers' meeting held at the court house several months ago, at which time representatives of New York State Cherry Growers Cooperative association were present, a Cherry Growers' Cooperative association is being organized. Mr. Peters represented the growers at a marketing committee meeting of the National Sour Cherry Growers held at Washington, D. C., last week.

Cherry growers urged united support of the cherry growers cooperative association for this area.

Criticism Is Heard In London

[By The Associated Press]

London, June 23—Dissatisfaction with Britain's military leadership flared openly in Commons today as it received its first accounting of the defeat in Libya.

Although the heartening news came that Britain's desert fighters have been reinforced and that more reinforcements are on the way, the House learned that the naval side of the Libyan struggle cost Britain seven warships, including a light cruiser, and 30 planes.

Offers Little Explanation

Clement Attlee, dominions secretary, made the report in the absence of Prime Minister Churchill in the United States, but offered little explanation of the setback which pushed the British Eighth Army to the Egyptian border.

The House, apparently determined to fix the blame for the defeat, cheered when conservative Sir John Wardlaw-Milne, from Churchill's own party, declared that some members "no longer have confidence in the military direction of the war."

When Attlee suggested that he was seeking a scapegoat, a voice cried out from one of the benches: "Why not?"

Attlee said the Axis lost heavily in the twin convoy battle, with a battleship torpedoed and a cruiser of the eight-inch gun Trento class and two destroyers sunk, while the British lost four destroyers and two patrol boats in addition to the light cruiser.

The convoy from the east passed supply ships into Tobruk, he said, and then steamed on toward Malta. When it was informed that the Italian fleet was coming out in the night, the British fleet was ordered to attack.

DELAY SIGNING FOR GAS CARDS

Washington, June 23 (AP)—The start of permanent gasoline rationing in the east has been postponed from July 15 to July 22 in order to give motorists an extra week in which to organize car pooling clubs.

The registration of car owners for new rationing cards also was delayed a week. The basic "A" books will be issued July 9, 10 and 11, instead of July 1, 2 and 3, as originally announced.

In order to extend the present emergency plan for the additional week, the Office of Price Administration authorized use of the War Bond seal in the upper left hand corner of each card for a ration of gasoline.

The purchase value of the seal will vary with the type of card. Holders of "A" cards will be entitled to three gallons to tide them over the interim period; B-1 holders, four gallons, and B-2 holders, five gallons, and B-3 card holders, six gallons.

Filling station attendants will punch the seal as if it were one of the units on the card. All unused units on A and B cards will continue to be good for six gallons each.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson explained that the sharing to make one car do the work of two, has become an integral part of the coupon rationing plan, and OPA desired that every effort be made to form as many such clubs as possible before the registration period.

TELLS 3 WAYS TO HELP FARMERS

District Two Will Send 79 For July 1 Induction

Draft Board No. 2 at the First National bank building announced a list of 79 young men of Gettysburg and western Adams county who have been notified to go to Harrisburg on Wednesday morning, July 1, for their final physical examination and induction into the United States Army if they pass the physical test.

The list of 78 white men and one negro is the largest called out from District No. 2 since the Selective Service Act was placed in operation and is the first to go under a new induction plan which goes into effect July 1.

Under the new arrangement those who pass the final physical examination will be taken into the Army immediately. They may ask for and will be granted immediate furloughs of about 14 days unless they wish to remain in the service without a special leave of absence.

Under the plan that goes into disarray at the end of this month, no furloughs were granted unless the men had made previous applications for them with their local draft boards.

The men from District No. 2 will report on the same day as the list of 73 published Monday from the New Oxford draft board office.

The local draft board's list follows:

China Also Expect Foe To Strike Swiftly

Washington, June 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain centered their attention today on the vital problem of shipping as they went ahead with the mapping of plans for the United Nations war strategy.

They summoned shipping experts of the two governments to a White House conference which was described as one of the most important of the series the Chief Executive (Please Turn to Page 2)

House Group Okays Largest Army Supply Bill In History

Washington, June 23 (AP)—A $42,820,003,606 Army supply bill—largest in history—was sent to the House by its appropriations committee today to finance an Army with a strength of 4,500,000 by July 1, 1943, and to send war material to other United Nations.

The measure amounted in itself to more than this country's direct outlay for the World War and would boost to $205,311,233,542 the total authorized or appropriated for defense and war in the last three years.

The committee explained the necessity for the expenditures by quoting Lieutenant General J. T. McNarney, the Army's deputy chief of staff:

Most Critical Situation

"The War department regards our present situation as the most critical which this country has ever encountered."

Rep. J. Buell Snyder (D-Pa.), in charge of the bill as chairman of the appropriations subcommittee on war expenditures, told newsmen:

"The only safe thing for the nation is to assume that this war is going to last five years at least—and then hope, pray and work to cut that period."

The omnibus measure provided $12,700,000,000 for financing war material for the United Nations, bringing to $62,944,650,000 the total of lend-lease aid thus far approved by Congress.

It included $11,316,898,910 for 23-550 planes and spare parts. Army chiefs and the committee joined in assuring Congress that the allotment would complete the War department's part of President Roosevelt's production program, calling for 60,000 planes this year and 125-000 in 1943.

The committee reported that voluntary refunds by war contractors and renegotiation of contracts had raised the prospects of large economies, amounting "at this stage" to approximately $1,137,000,000.

Maintain Profits

"This," the report said, "reflects the zeal of the War department to maintain profits at fair levels, and it reflects the high type of men running the plants which we are so largely dependent for the production of munitions."

In a transcript of carefully edited testimony made public by the committee, General McNarney declared that the "Army's every effort is being directed to making our power (Please Turn to Page 2)

SIX SHELTERS IN USE HERE

The new air raid control center in the court house basement and the public air raid shelters that already have been designated in most county towns will be used for the first time this evening during the all-night dim-out and half-hour test blackout.

Wardens have been instructed to direct strangers or motorists who will abandon their cars during the blackout to the nearest public air raid shelter.

Six already have been designated and marked with special signs in Gettysburg. They are in Stevens' hall and the Gilliland apartment building, both along the west side of Carlisle street; the Gettysburg Furniture factory show room, York street; the Gettysburg National bank, side entrance, York street; Battlefield hotel, and the court house on Baltimore street.

ARMY RUBBER SHORTAGE

Washington, June 23 (AP)—Brigadier General L. D. Clay of the general staff told a House appropriations subcommittee in hearings made public today that the fighting services face a 25,000-ton rubber shortage, for their program up to the end of 1943. The computed needs of the Army, Navy, lend-lease during the period from April 1 of this year up to Dec. 31, 1943, Clay said, are 866-000 tons.

2 Serious Aspects

In the earlier instance, it is true, there were no Germans among the invaders, but British strength, especially in equipment, was only a fraction of what it is today.

Two serious aspects of the situation, however, are the extent of what the British lost in the past four weeks of fighting in Libya, especially in tanks, and the possibility that Rommel will get important reinforcements across the Mediterranean in a short time.

The extent to which the Axis can add to its forces in Africa depends on what it can afford to withdraw from Europe rather than on difficulties of getting it across the Mediterranean, now that Malta has been largely neutralized.

British losses in Libya were heavy and, although much material was destroyed before withdrawal, the speed of the latest German attacks was so great that some fell into their hands.

They are quick at putting captured equipment to use.

After a long conference with General Stone, general officer commanding British troops in Egypt, and with the Egyptian premier and defense minister, British Ambassador Sir Miles Lampson reported "the situation is satisfactory."

Sir Miles said, "we shall beat the enemy decisively."

"The population should remain calm."

"We have confidence."

"Last year the situation was much worse, and in spite of that we won."

"The Egyptian government meanwhile reported recruiting of 50,000 volunteers for air raid precautions."

Another reminder: Take along your sugar ration book. If you eat 12 or more meals in a summer resort or hotel, the manager will ask you to surrender a sugar stamp.

There also will be an army of war plant workers staying on the job over the week-end and driving to work. The council believes the combination will result in a holiday motor traffic volume only slightly below normal peacetime July 4 holidays.

George A. Kelly, vice president of the Pullman company, said vacationers-by-rail should be prepared to make last minute changes in their plans to avoid disappointments, also to allow one or two days leeway in their schedule-fixing and be willing to wait for the next train, or even the next day, if necessary.

A barometer of the tremendous rail movement of military forces and material was Kelly's statement that 2,500,000 troops have been transported in sleeping cars since January 1, of which 525,000 were in May, a new monthly record, and that civilian travel is running 30 per cent ahead of last year.

Whatever your mode of contemplated vacation travel, unless it's by horse, the experts advise consultation with travel agents on routes, destinations and facilities.

attempt to intercept it, fuel was expended in cruising until British and American bombers carried out an air attack. The loss in fuel forced the convoy to turn back to Alexandria, he said, but in the meantime the safe arrival at Malta of the convoy from the west had been assured.

As members demanded to know when Churchill himself would return to give a full statement and answer the nation's anxious questions, Sir Stafford Cripps, Lord Privy Seal and leader in the House, announced that there would be a two-day debate on Libya soon.

Attlee suggested that the House should vote "and if there is blame they should place the blame on the right quarter" after learning the full facts.

Reinforcements Received

Part of Attlee's statement was a telegram from General Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, British Middle Eastern Commander-in-Chief, disclosing that the Eighth Army "already has received and still is receiving further reinforcements."

Attlee acknowledged that "events have turned against us" but he declared Britain still had strong forces in the field being implemented by "substantial land and air reinforcements" and that "the splendid courage and morale of our troops" is unshaken.

Auchinleck reported that at one point Rommel's Army was exhausted and had been fought to a standstill.

"Had we been able to take advantage of the enemy's position we might have turned the scale," he added, "but in point of fact, however, we were equally exhausted and this was impossible."

Minimum Use Of Phones Requested In 'Blackout'

Civilian defense instructions stress the rule—"Do not use your telephone during or immediately following a blackout."

E. V. Trimmer, district manager for The United Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, said that special records of telephone traffic taken during test blackouts show a minimum of calling during the actual blackout period, followed by a surge of calls with the sounding of "all clear" signal.

This rush of calls immediately following a blackout is generally many times the normal traffic peak and may cause delays in emergency and essential calls by defense authorities, Mr. Trimmer pointed out.

Tonight and following all future blackouts the public has been requested by Mr. Trimmer to limit its use of the telephone to essential calls.

He said that a record will be kept of all telephone calls made during and following tonight's blackout.

Takes Testimony In Shutz Case

Sitting as a special master to take testimony, determine the facts and reach conclusions of law in the H. W. Shutz case involving the Cross Keys Inn, Walter V. Compton, Esq., referee in bankruptcy for this section, took testimony at a hearing conducted in the law library at the court house on Monday afternoon.

The hearing was on a rule for a restraining order issued recently by Judge Albert W. Johnson in federal court that stayed a scheduled sheriff's sale of personal property at the inn. Mr. Compton will make a report to Judge Johnson who will rule finally on the move for an injunction to prevent the sale during a one-year period from the confirmation by the federal district court of an agreement, closing 1941 bankruptcy proceedings, under which creditors of Mr. and Mrs. Shutz agreed to wait a year for payment of their claims.

It is the contention of these "deferred creditors" that the personal property of Cross Keys Inn form a part of the assets upon which they rely for final payment of their claims. They further claim that C. H. Bittinger, Berwick township, who entered the execution in this case upon which the sheriff proceeded to levy recently, as "an outsider" has no right to levy on the personal property and sell it during the year's period covered by the agreement between Mr. and Mrs. Shutz and the "deferred creditors."

Shutz, through his attorney, John P. Butts, Esq., also claimed that Bittinger as the assignee of three judgments formerly owned by T. J. Little, who was one of the persons joining in the year-deferment agreement has no more rights than Little.

Several witnesses, including Shutz testified. Shutz was questioned over the objections of his attorney about the removal of an organ and other valuable pieces of property from the inn before the sheriff's levy was made.

J. Francis Yake, Esq., as counsel for Bittinger, called the witnesses at Monday's hearing and then filed a motion for the dismissal of the proceedings and raised points of law.

felt by offensive action in consonance with the accepted basic strategy of the United Nations.

"It is extremely difficult to plan with precision," he told the committee. "Events will no doubt alter our plans in the future, just as they have in the past. There is, however, one error which we must avoid at all costs, and this is the error of underestimating the task ahead of us."

He reported the enemy's most effective weapons "at the outset of the war were the airplane and the submarine," and added that the Army was concentrating on developing counter measures—anti-aircraft and submarine weapons, and an increase in the use of camouflage and smoke screens.

Outlines Army's Needs

Just back from a conference with Britain's war chiefs, Lieutenant General B. B. Somervell, in charge of the services of supply, outlined in detail the Army's needs as it grows from an enlisted strength of 2,800,000 at present to 4,500,000 in another 12 months.

Much of his testimony was stricken from the transcript for reasons of military secrecy, but he told the committee that "since equipment must be planned at least a year in advance, the strengths must be based upon our maximum capabilities of manpower, production, and shipping, in order to avoid providing 'too little, too late'."

"Our present pipe line is long," he said, "extending entirely around the world. You have to fill it before the material comes out the other end. This requires large amounts of supplies."

He listed the problem of "working out the details" as the "chief bottleneck" in the program's achievement.

Rubber Situation Serious

In its report, the committee found that the question of obtaining raw materials generally is "quite satisfactory," but added that the "rubber phase is rather disturbing."

So seriously does the committee regard the rubber-tire problem that it called upon the American people "to desist immediately from using their automobiles for any other than the most essential purposes if the boys at the front are to carry on."

"Conservation of rubber in that way," it said, "may have a very important influence upon hastening the day of victory."

Lieutenant General Henry H. Arnold, commanding the Army Air forces, told the committee that 1942 has and would continue to be a year of "unprecedented Air Force expansion," and expressed belief that facilities and material would be available to meet the President's plane production program.

From Major General O. P. Echols of the Army Air Corps came the report that the army was pressing its development of high altitude aircraft, engines with increased power, and planes with heavier armament.

Both Arnold and Echols disclosed that the Air Force was building up big reserve depots of plane spare parts "in strategic locations all over the world."

girls to aid in the harvest were determined Monday afternoon when a committee composed of York and Adams county men conferred in the capitol at Harrisburg with Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction, and Carl D. Marnawich, chief of the division of child accounting and research.

The committee meeting with the state education heads included Wirt Winebrenner, Pennsylvania state canning coordinator; Robert C. Myers, chairman of the Adams County Farm Labor committee; Prof. Robert Bagshaw, superintendent of Hanover schools; Harrison Snyder, Littlestown, chairman of the U. S. War Board of Adams county; M. T. Hartman, Adams county farm head; Assemblyman George Baugher, orchardist, and Paul B. Piersol, head of the U. S. Employment offices in Gettysburg and Hanover.

Doctor Haas told the committee his department will cooperate as fully as possible. He suggested that holiday vacations during school terms be shortened in order that students may get in required days and still aid farmers and orchardists during harvest. Doctor Haas said boys and girls between 14 and 17 years of age will be granted work permits in accordance with existing laws. It was indicated that the various school districts of York and Adams counties will arrange calendars to fit harvest needs. The schools probably will open earlier than usual and will close down to provide labor during harvest peaks. In orchard sections schools will close to provide labor for fruit harvest. In other sections schools will close during the periods when labor is needed for other kinds of harvesting.

The school districts will be asked to arrange their schedule in order that boys and girls may attend classes for the number of days required by law and may be available when there is need for labor to harvest crops grown in their particular area.

Emmitsburg Livestock Dealer Is Arrested

Merle Keilholtz, Emmitsburg livestock dealer, was arrested this morning by Sheriff Daniel J. Wolf and Deputy Sheriff B. E. Bixler on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore charging the Marylander with removing livestock from a property while it was under levy by the sheriff.

The information was sworn out this morning after Sheriff Wolff and his deputy went to the Mt. Joy township property of Wilmer S. Baker to conduct a sheriff's sale.

According to the sheriff they found that a horse and two cows that were there when the levy was made were missing this morning. The sheriff said that Keilholtz admitted he had removed the three animals and claimed they belonged to him, asserting the sheriff had no right to levy on his property.

Keilholtz was committed to the county jail in default of $1,000 bail for a hearing but his release on bond was expected later this afternoon. The time for the hearing has not been fixed.

Keilholtz attended the Baker sale this morning and was taken into custody there.

duties for her late uncle, Samuel Bushman, former president of the First National bank of Gettysburg, and his two brothers. All three of the men were bachelors.

While acting as hostess for her uncle Mrs. Deardorff traveled extensively with him both abroad and in this country and Central and South America. She was widely read and developed a fondness for writing poetry. Several of her pieces were published in nationally circulated periodicals. Her most recent effort was a short poem on "Communism" which was published in the St. James Lutheran church Messenger. She received Communion last Sunday morning when her pastor the Rev. Ralph R. Gresh visited her at the hospital.

Funeral Friday

Besides her household duties Mrs. Deardorff's greatest interest was in the local D.A.R. chapter. She was also a student of revolutionary history and Lincolniana.

The deceased was a member of the D.A.R., the Women's Auxiliary of the Albert J. Lentz Post, the American Legion, the Women's League of Gettysburg college, the Gettysburg Woman's club and St. James Lutheran church.

Friends may call at the Bender funeral home Thursday evening.

GIANT TRANSPORTS

Washington, June 23 (AP)—Army plans to use giant transports for mass evacuation of soldiers critically wounded today on the battlefield were disclosed today by Colonel David N. W. Grant, Army flight surgeon.

The "flying hospitals" would be used in evacuating those wounded whose lives might be saved if they could be transported to a hospital for definite treatment within 24 to 48 hours, he said in testimony made public by the House appropriations committee.

and Prime Minister have been holding for the last five days.

The White House permitted the disclosure also that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill had conferred yesterday with Dr. T. V. Soong, China's foreign minister, who has been in this country for some time. Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said it was "quite an extended conference."

"The subject was, of course, China, in a military sense," Early said.

Meeting with the President and Prime Minister were Harry L. Hopkins, a principal adviser to the President in the field of supplies; rear admiral Emory S. Land, head of the war shipping administration and co-chairman of the combined Anglo-American shipping board; Sir Arthur Salter, British chairman of the board; Lewis W. Douglas, deputy war shipping administrator; Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, the maritime commission's ship construction authority; Admiral Sir Charles Little, member of the Anglo-American combined chiefs of staff; and Admiral J. W. Doring, British admiralty supply representative; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet; and Vice Admiral S. M. Robinson, chief of the Navy's office of procurement and materials.

For the time being, the President and Prime Minister confined their public remarks to a carefully worded statement, issued last night. It made one principal point.

"The object in view is the earliest maximum concentration of Allied war power upon the enemy, and reviewing or, where necessary, further concerting all the measures which have for some time past been on foot to develop and sustain the effort of the United Nations."

The assertion that the President and Prime Minister were mapping an offensive strategy came from Harry L. Hopkins, a Presidential intimate and a key man in the American war leadership. Hopkins, addressing a Russian war relief rally in New York last night, said that Churchill has "but one business here," and that was the planning of such strategy.

7 BOYS WARNED

refusing to "break up" a noisy gathering on center square at 12:20 o'clock Monday morning.

Burgess Pfeffer led to the youths an 1883 borough ordinance prohibiting loitering on town streets or in public places and reminded them they also might be fined for disorderly conduct. He also pointed out that if the rowdiness continues an old borough ordinance providing for a curfew to clear minors off the streets at a specified hour could be dusted off and enforced.

Only One With Job

The Burgess told the boys that he and the police officers have tried to take a liberal view on enforcement of the ordinances in question and that it is only in cases where persons have become "downright nuisances" that the laws have been invoked. He assured them that adequate steps will be taken to break up the noisy loitering about which citizens have complained.

The youth against whom the fine was assessed Monday evening was named by Officer Culp as the "chief offender" in the Monday morning disturbance.

The Burgess asked the group how many had jobs and only one answered in the affirmative. Pointing out that if they would work eight or ten hours a day they would not have time to wander over the streets all hours of the night, the Burgess advised the youths not to be "too choosy" about the kind of work they would accept. "That kind of an attitude is not becoming at a time like this," he said.

U.S. BOMBERS GO TO CHINA'S AID

(By The Associated Press)

Giant four-motored U. S. Army bombers, winging 500 miles across one of the world's toughest flying routes, today were reported bolstering Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies in China amid indications of a slightly improved but still critical outlook on the Chinese fighting front.

"The Japanese have taken a number of cities from us," a Chinese

Army spokesman said, referring to the campaign in east China.

"But our troops are penetrating the enemy flank and rear and the battle is anything but decisive, despite preposterous enemy claims."

The spokesman said that Chinese troops had stopped Japanese invasion columns along vital routes in Kwangtung and Kiangsi provinces and that even with reinforcements brought up from the South seas, the enemy had been unable to narrow the 50-mile gap held by the Chinese along the strategic Chekiang-Kiangsi railway.

The spokesman said a Japanese move to invade the coastal province of Fukien from Kiangsi had also been frustrated.

WHIRLY HEADS FOR MONEY MARK

New York, June 23 (AP)—Sharp as a tack on teacher's chair, Whirlaway sat around and munched his oats today and studied a schedule that he figures will make him the world's leading breadwinner of the turf in exactly 22 days.

He proved his fitness for those festivities by smashing Aqueduct's mile and an eighth track record to 1:59 2/5 yesterday in an ordinary overnight allowance. Although this was worth only $2,275, it boosted his bankroll for two and a half years to $380,836.

This left him still $56,894 short of Seabiscuit's mark, but the schedule that Owner Warren Wright and Trainer Ben Jones have mapped out could give the blue grass bullet the difference in just three more starts—the Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct Saturday, the Butler at Empire City July 4 and the Massachusetts at Suffolk July 15.

After that, he'll probably take a crack at the Arlington handicap, a $25,000 affair in Chicago August 1, before coming back east to Saratoga.

Yesterday's test, in which Whirlaway used to call him Wacky—came from far back under Georgie (The Iceman) Woolf's unfamiliar handling to hang his nose on the wire in front of his old jinx, Attention, was just a "tightener" for the Brooklyn.

It showed that if any horse is going to beat him Saturday, he's going to have to be a hot horse, of all the eligibles, only Market Wise figures to be able to give him any trouble in this mile and a quarter whirl.

The Brooklyn is a $30,000-added race, which probably will give the winner something like $23,000. The Butler is the same. If Whirlaway can take both of these, he'll still be about $10,000 short of the record, which would mean he not only could catch the Biscuit, but could leave him far down the track with the Massachusetts. That one carries $50,000 in added money, of which more than $40,000 would go into the winner's bank account. And, while it's an ambitious schedule, Whirlaway probably figures all those jackpots would buy a lot of hay.

HEADS SCHOOL SYSTEM

Abington, Pa., June 23 (AP)—Dr. Raymond White, professor of education at Lehigh university, Bethlehem, Pa., was named superintendent of schools in Abington township last night. He replaces Joseph C. Weirick who held the $7,000-a-year post for eight years before retiring last week because of illness.

In the days of the pee-wee golf craze, Otey tried to collect a $10 prize offered to anyone who could make par on one layout and he busted up a half dozen putters in the attempt. . . .

Billy Conn reports that when his fighting days are over he always can get a job as a window washer. He had four weeks of it at the Fort Jay hospital while that bungled-up hand was healing. . . . Heinie Groh, who never was a giant among ball players, once passed up signing Dom DiMaggio for the Giants because he considered Dom too small for the big leagues. . . . When he heard that George Halas of the Bears was laid up for repairs, Curley Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers fired this sympathetic message: "Get out of that hospital and put Luckman in there." . . . Dick Weisgerber, the old Williamette U. footballer, has abandoned a promising career as a baseball umpire to work as storekeeper on that Alaska highway building job. . . . The IOA sports front is getting behind the war bond drive and hopes to do as well as it did in last winter's Red Cross campaign. . . . Morgan (Dad) Evans of Milwaukee, who took up golf at 65, celebrated his 83rd birthday recently by playing 27 holes. His best score this year is 86 but he expects to shoot below his age before the season ends. . . . Two of Charley Johnson's fighters, Vince Dell Orto and George Zengaras, own restaurants. Two of the early entries in Houston's war bond softball tournament, to be played over July 4 week-end, were from Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and Camp Polk, Louisiana. . . . 5,000 Volunteers To Occupy Warning Towers Pittsburgh, June 23 (AP)—More than 5,000 men, women and boys recruited by the American Legion will man air-raid warning towers in Pennsylvania west of Altoona on a 24-hour basis beginning June 29, Harry W. Schreiber, district director of the air-raid warning service, announced.

Schreiber said orders for the day and night duty were issued by the U. S. Army Air Corps regional headquarters of the First Interceptor Command in Buffalo. Two persons will be required to be on duty as "spotters" at all times, Schreiber said. Pittsburgh, the filter station for towers in the western Pennsylvania district, is controlled by the Buffalo office. However, all air-raid messages for the district are cleared through New York.

M'CARTHY NOT WORRIED BY YANKS' SLUMP

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees are in the sharpest sort of a slump. They have lost six of their last eight games, five in a row last week-end, yet Manager Joseph Vincent McCarthy professes that he is not even annoyed.

There is no real reason why he should be. After losing all these games to first division clubs the World Champions remain seven full games in front of the second place Boston Red Sox in the American league.

Pitching Holds Up
"I'm not worried at all," Manse Joe told writers with the World Champions yesterday. "Our pitchers held up all right, didn't they? And you know these fellows can hit, don't you? We hit slumps just like any other club and we come out of them, too."

This is all too true. The Yankees' pitching has held up beautifully. In two of the games they lost the New York pitchers allowed only five hits; in two others they gave up only six safeties, but were beaten.

The hitting has been notable for its absence, but no one doubts that Joe DiMaggio, Charley Keller, Bill Dickey, Joe Gordon and the rest can hit and will hit. As an aftermath of their recent batting streaks Gordon went hitless in four consecutive games and Buddy Hassett didn't connect in 23 times at bat.

Brooks 7½ Games Ahead
In the National league the Brooklyn Dodgers have a 7½ game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals and will devote this week to repulsing the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds. Whether they will be able to do it with as much vigor as they displayed in carving out four victories in a five-game series with the Cardinals remains to be seen.

Yesterday was an open date for both major leagues.

Zivic Beats Britton, Son Of Ex-Champion

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 23 (AP)—

Fritz Zivic, the former welterweight champion from Pittsburgh, demonstrated in four easy rounds last night that Bobby Britton isn't the fighter his dad was.

Zivic, weighing 150½, scored a technical knockout over the son of the one-time titleholder, Jack Britton, before 2,935 fans at Kingston armory. The Miami, Florida, fighter weighed 151½.

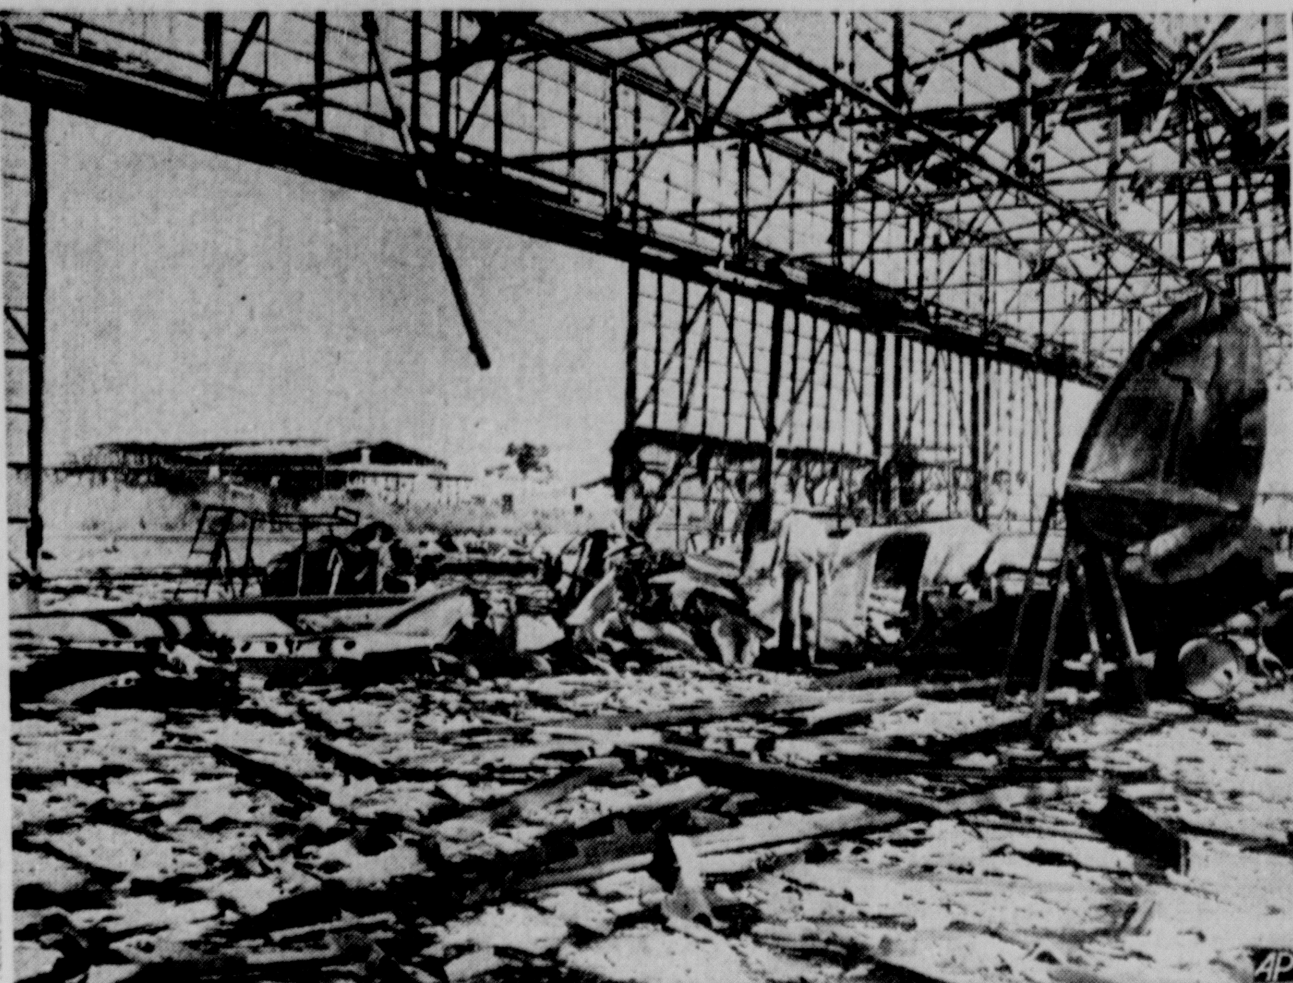

The Pittsburgher closed Britton's eye in the third round and knocked him down twice for counts of five and four in the fourth before Referee Benny Leonard, the old lightweight champ, stopped the scheduled ten-round.

MRS. STILWELL DIES

Yonkers, N. Y., June 23 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Peene Stilwell, 83, mother of Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, chief of staff of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, United Nations commander in the China area, died Monday at her home after a 10-days' illness.

Wartime Restrictions Cut Golf Tourney Lists

(By The Associated Press)

Wartime restrictions caused more casualties than old man par yesterday in qualifying rounds of Pennsylvania amateur golf tournament with the result that the principal requirement for landing a berth in the finals was the stamina to last 36 holes.

All 64 places in the championship event to be held July 15-17 at Oakmont course near Pittsburgh were filled—but only because four former champions were exempt from qualifying and three other golfers were handed invitations on the basis of scores carded last week.

Indicating that excellence at the game was purely secondary, scores ranged from the even par 144 of former titlist Knox M. Young, Jr., at Pittsburgh to a gaudy 187. 47 strokes above regulation figures, turned in by Herman Seifert at Huntingdon Valley, Philadelphia.

Only 44 golfers—including Young who went out for the practice—played at Pittsburgh's Fox Chapel course, and all qualified. Forty-eight places were open.

At Philadelphia, nine competed—and qualified—leaving two vacancies. Jack Buchanan of Manufacturer's club, veteran state tournament competitor, shot a 10-over-par 150 to lead that contingent.

Three places were available at Lancaster and three golfers played. Jack Peek's 163 was low with Harry Wisotzky and W. H. Stauffer, Jr., both of York, shooting 169 and 181, respectively.

MEDWICK PUSHES REISER FOR LEAD

New York, June 23 (AP)—The National league at last has produced a rivalry for the batting leadership to equal the hot scrap Joe Gordon and Bobby Doerr have been having in the American league for so many weeks.

The only difference is that the struggle for honors in the senior circuit is between two members of the same team—Pete Reiser and Joe Medwick of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Reiser at present is on top with an average of .356, six points above Medwick, but the latter managed to get in front for one day last week and may maneuver into the lead again at any time. Both have been slugging at a fast clip and have shown their ability to maintain a sustained pace.

Medwick won the league batting title in 1937 and Reiser, of course, captured the crown last year as a rookie.

Gordon and Doerr both slipped last week, but held their respective positions in the American league race with the Yankee star on top at .367 and Doerr second at .351.

No others could get close to the leaders in either league.

YOUR CALLING

I hear from so many that they feel stymied in a world of confusion and futility. Yet there has never been born a human being into this world who was not endowed with a "manifest destiny!"

It would be a strange world indeed that expected every one of its inhabitants to become great. Greatness, after all, is a relative word.
There are great ones of this earth
of whom but a handful ever heard.
Greatness is simplicity, genuineness, and worth, performed in words and in deeds. The humblest day worker is fulfilling his destiny.

Said Emerson: "The more distinctly, we become acquainted with our powers and destiny, the more effectively do we exert ourselves to give that direction to our common employments; the less do we serve our circumstances, and the more do they serve us."

For service rendered a commen-surate service is returned. To the boy or girl, facing the morning of life, it is unimportant as to the choice of their minds. The importance lies in the full measure of their will and choice to round out a serviceful life.

The great task of life is to learn lessons—first of all for ourselves—that we may in turn become teachers or "fishers of men." He is a contributor to life who elevates the most mental task to one of destiny and worth.

Your calling is an affair of your own. Certain promptings of the heart, and certain "hunches" of the mind, tend to direct you on your way. You are a pioneer of discovery, and you shape your course by the yardstick of circumstance and character.

To satisfy the urge of that inner craving for expression is the all important task of everyone who would fulfill life's purpose. It is no weakness to change the course of ones life. Rather is it a thing of courage. It may be only after the answering of a dozen calls that we find the true way to a happy plan of life.

By doing one thing well there is created the desire to do something else better—and which may prove to be more important, and more vast in influence.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Strangers To Ourselves."

HITLERISM

We had not dreamed five years ago
One man, however mad was he,
Could fill the world with so much woe;
Set slaughter loose on land and sea.

When first his raucous voice was heard
And first his waxy face was seen,
Men thought the fancy too absurd
So much of horror could have been.

But when on him the blow shall fall,
When death or capture stills his voice,
We'll give that day to festival
And with exultant hearts rejoice!

Dr. Marts Urges Stiff Penalties For Blackout Violations

DUSK-TO-DAWN
REHEARSAL SET
FOR TONIGHT

Harrisburg, June 23 (AP)—Stiff penalties for violations during the half-hour complete blackouts tonight in 31 eastern Pennsylvania counties holding dusk-to-dawn air raid rehearsals were urged today by Dr. A. C. Marts, state defense council director.

"Penalties should be stiff, according to the air raid precautions act," he declared, "but warnings should suffice for violations that occur during the partial blackouts."

The partial blackout will begin at 8:30 p. m. and end at 5:30 a. m.
tomorrow morning. At an unannounced time, air raid alarms in each of the affected communities will signal the start of the 30-minute total blackout.

Use Prepared Shelters
During the partial blackout, pedestrians and motorists may move but homes must be dark. Dr. Marts emphasized that residents should go to prepared shelter rooms and conduct their normal affairs—not turn out all lights at 8:30 and go to bed.

After the 30-minute total test begins however, all traffic except approved emergency vehicles must stop and all persons except defense workers seek shelter.

"These tests are going to reveal which citizens take these precautions seriously and which are gambling that we'll never be bombed," Dr. Marts asserted.

"It has been very encouraging to me to learn that the Middletown air depot, the Indiantown Gap military reservation and the Lebanon plant of the Bethlehem Steel company have decided to cooperate fully during the total blackout," he added.

"They will be closed up tight for 30 minutes and will operate with as little light as possible for the rest of the rehearsal."

Counties Affected Tonight
Wednesday night 20 central Pennsylvania counties will have the same air raid alarms tests and on Thursday, 16 western counties will have their turn.

Counties affected tonight are Bradford, Susquehanna, Sullivan,
Wyoming, Lackawanna, Wayne, Pike County, Snyder, Northumberland, Montour, Columbia, Luzerne, Monroe, Carbon, Schuylkill, Northampton, Lehigh, Perry, Cumberland, Adams, Dauphin, Lebanon, Berks, Bucks, Montgomery, York, Lancaster, Chester, Delaware and Philadelphia.

New Kharkov Action (Berlin officials, however, estimated Nov. 21 that the Russians had lost 10,000,000 men. They said March 8 that Germany's casualties totalled 1,500,000.)

Phrases suggested that the Russians expected new local setbacks—perhaps the fall of the finally cracked defenses of Sevastopol. And German troops struck again at Soviet lines on the Kharkov front, renewing a drive originally launched June 10.

"Hitler is still able to concentrate considerable forces on certain sectors of the front and to achieve certain successes," the review said.
"This occurred on the Kerch peninsula, where the Germans had numerical superiority in tanks and planes."

"Similar successes are possible in the near future, but one thing is clear: That such successes are not decisive regarding the outcome of the war. These successes are temporary. The German army of 1942 is not what it was at the beginning of the war."

Mechanical Losses
Mechanical losses were presented thus:
"Guns: Germany 30,500, Russia 22,000.
"Tanks: Germany 24,000, Russia 15,000.
"Planes: Germany 20,000, Russia 9,000."

Figures on wounded and prisoners were not broken down, but the review said 70 per cent of the Red army's injured had been able to return to front line duty while only 40 per cent of the German wounded fought again. The difference was laid to inadequacy of the Nazi ambulance service.

A renewal of the drive by Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Fedor Von Bock in the Donets Basin area vital to a successful drive upon the Caucasus was disclosed in a communique with the statement:
"On June 22 our troops on the Kharkov front waged battle against attacking German troops."

Fierce Sevastopol Battle Fierce fighting was reported to have continued at Sevastopol.
Crimean naval base whose beleaguered garrison has been forced back on the south and yielded ground in northern fortifications before a wedge of tanks, infantry and artillery.

The Russian air force was credited with knocking 20 German tanks out of action Sunday.

Guerrillas striking in the region of Orel, Nazi-held railway town 200 miles south of Moscow, were said to have killed nearly 1,000 Germans and destroyed 11 German tanks, 110 trucks and five guns during the months they have been in action.

Scrap rubber makes reclaimed rubber, the reclaiming of good rubber out of one old pounds out of a tube, 20 pounds

The Crew Escaped With Their Lives

Both the engineer and the fireman of this electric locomotive were injured but not seriously when their train crashed into the rear of another train at Anderson, Md. The four principal Baltimore-Washington tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad were blocked for hours midway between the two cities by the accident which occurred when a freight, backing up to take another try at a grade it had failed to make, was struck by the second freight train approaching from behind.

SOVIET CLAIMS
10 MILLION NAZI
WAR CASUALTIES

Moscow, June 23 (AP)—Soviet Russia said today Germany had suffered 10,000,000 casualties against 4,500,000 Red losses in their year-old war and, although conceded that Adolf Hitler still mounted powerful sector offensives, she declared these could only postpone the "complete destruction of the Hitlerite army."

The hour of victory, it was said, has been hastened by "the conclusion of the Anglo-Soviet treaty and the agreement between the U.S.S.R. and the United States."

Of the killed, wounded and missing, Nazi dead total not less than 3,500,000, the Soviet information bureau reported in a special review.
The Russians were declared to have excelled in the destruction or capture of field guns, tanks and planes.

(The figures would indicate the Germans have lost an average of almost two full divisions and the Russians almost one daily through offensives, local fighting and bulls
since the Germans invaded June 22, 1941.)

SOUTHEASTERN BOROUGHES HAVE
LOW TAX RATES

Harrisburg, June 23 (AP)—Local governments of several southeastern Pennsylvania boroughs operated at the lowest cost to taxpayers in 1941, in comparison to the actual value of taxable real estate, the department of internal affairs disclosed today.

"If tax rates are adjusted to a comparable basis * * *, it becomes evident that certain boroughs, especially in the southeastern part of the state, operate at low cost to the taxpayers * * *," declared Henry W.
Van Pelt, director of the department's statistical bureau.

On that basis, he said, West Chester in Chester county had the lowest total rate among the 123 boroughs with more than 6,000 population. The rate was 10.12 mills for borough, school, county and institution purposes combined.

Other "Low" Boroughs
Norristown had an almost equally low adjusted tax rate at 12.83 mills.
Other boroughs with low figures were Ambridge (Beaver county), Conshohocken (Montgomery), Lansdale (Montgomery), Yeadon (Delaware), Etna (Allegheny) and Ephrata (Lancaster).

"When the combined local tax rate is taken into consideration, including taxes levied for borough, county, institution and school purposes, we find a range from 23 mills in the case of West Chester to 85.3
mills for Clearfield," Van Pelt said.

"An examination of the tax rates throughout the state disclosed that Allegheny county is one of the areas where boroughs are functioning with exceptionally low millages. On the other hand, where there is a higher proportion of tax delinquency, as in the anthracite counties, local tax rates necessarily tend to be high."

Asserting the size of a borough had little connection with its tax rate, Van Pelt said, however, that among boroughs of substantial size, the lowest average tax rate was found in the group between 12,000 and 15,000 populations. He added:

"This suggests that a community of that size is, generally speaking, large enough to provide the services of government on an economical basis."

Middletown Lowest Pointing out that "a limited valuation basis often necessitates imposing a high millage in order to raise sufficient tax revenue," Van Pelt named Shenandoah, Shamokin and Mount Carmel as illustrations.

The statistician said Middletown, Dauphin county, with a tax of one mill had the lowest millage rate for borough purposes. Next lowest came Chambersburg with four mills, trailed by West Chester, Tarentum
(Allegheny), Schuylkill Haven (Schuylkill) and Brackenridge (Allegheny) with five each.

The deceased was noted for his powers as a speaker and lecturer.
He served as lecturer for a number of periods in the Swarthmore Chautaquas, and his patriotic talks for the civic and military groups of

Freak Industrial
Accidents Puzzle
State Officials

Harrisburg, June 23 (AP)—Freak accidents, the kind that "wouldn't happen again in a hundred years," give the Department of Labor and industry plenty of headaches in deciding just who or what should be blamed.

Consider the case of the department store salesgirl who was minding her own business when a salesman gave her a playful but too ardent hug—she was treated later for two broken ribs.

That's just one of the scores of unusual compensation claims the department has received.

Up for consideration also is the case of a woman who lost her hearing when a bolt of lightning struck a building while she was in a rest room changing clothes.

Other puzzlers include:
A typist who was busy at her desk
when a spider bit her on the foot, forcing her to stay off her feet and away from work for several days.

A pencil, caught by the moving part of a machine, struck a nearby worker, bursting a blood vessel in her knee.

Working in a tailor shop, a feminine employee suffered a fractured pelvis and other injuries when a cave-in collapsed an adjoining building, badly damaging the one in which she was working.

Even a ticket seller at a theatre found her cage was far from safe during a fire scare—she lost several teeth in the melee which followed the alarm.

Another victim was a woman kibitzer, watching a janitress operate an electric sweeper. She stood too close and the handle struck her causing several bad bruises.

Ways To Save Sugar When Canning Fruit

The following suggestions have been received from the bureau of home economics in the United States Department of Agriculture, U.S.D.A.

When You Can Fruit

Crushed. Crushed canned fruit is used in sauces for shortcakes, frozen deserts, puddings, and pies. This method saves jar space.

Crush the fruit and heat it enough to draw out the juice but not enough to spoil the fruit flavor or to scorch the fruit. It is best to heat fruit in a double boiler or an ordinary saucepan set in hot water. Cook the fruit 3 or 4 minutes, then pour into containers. Use no sugar or just enough to sweeten slightly. Seal and process. Detailed directions for packing and processing fruits are in the canning circular which can be obtained from the Agricultural Extension office in the court house.

In slices. Suitable for strawberries, plums, cherries, figs, ripe peaches and pears.

Slice fruit as you would for desert and heat in a double boiler or in a saucepan set in hot water until the juice is drawn out. No sugar need be added—or use only enough to sweeten slightly. Pack the hot fruit into containers. Be sure there is enough juice to cover the fruit. Process according to directions in the canning circular.

Halves or large pieces with shape preserved. Suitable for all fruits.

Method 1. For juicy fruits. Pack fruit whole or in halves into the containers, cover with boiling juice made by crushing, heating, and straining the riper fruit. Seal and process according to directions in the canning circular.

Method 2. For non-juicy fruits, such as apples, peaches, and pears. Same as method 1, using only a very little water—just enough to cover the fruit. There is no point in canning excess water.

Method 3. To be used if some form of sweetening is available for canning. Suitable for all fruits, especially if the fruits such as peaches and pears will not yield enough of their own juice for the canning liquid.

Instead of the medium syrup suggested for canning most fruits, use a light syrup. See proportions for light syrup in the canning circular. If you desire, you may substitute up to half of the sweetening called for in the syrup with an equal amount of honey, or up to 1/3 the sweetening called for with an equal amount of corn syrup. To make a light syrup with honey, for instance, for 1 gallon of water you would use 2 1/2 cups sugar and 2 1/2 cups honey. With corn syrup, for each gallon of water you would use 3 1/3 cups sugar and 1 2/3 cups corn syrup.

Pack the fruit in the containers and pour the hot syrup over them. Or heat the fruit in the syrup, fill the jars with the heated fruit, and cover with hot syrup. Process as directed in the canning circular.

Jellies, Jams, Preserves
You can't cut down on sugar as much in jellies, jams and preserves as is possible when you can fruit. For in these products, sugar is used not only for sweetening—but to help preserve the fruit as well, and to help give each product its characteristic consistency.

However, you can reduce the sugar somewhat in two ways:

1. Use the minimum of sugar suggested in any recipe for jellies, jams, and preserves. You will notice most of these call for 3/4 to 1 part of sugar for every part fruit juice, fruit pulp, or fruit pieces. In each case, use the 3/4 part sugar to 1 part fruit. If you use the lesser amount of sugar you also get more of the natural fruit flavor.

2. Replace part of the sugar with honey or corn syrup. If you use honey, the product will be equally as sweet as one made using all sugar. Jams, jellies, and preserves made with corn syrup as part of the sweetening will be slightly less sweet than those using all sugar.

Here's how to apply these two rules to jellies, jams and preserves.

Jellies
With less sugar: Use 3/4 cup sugar to each cup fruit juice.

With part honey: Replace up to 1/4 the sugar called for with an equal measure of honey.

With part corn syrup: Replace up to 1/4 the sugar called for with an equal measure of corn syrup.

If you use either part honey or part corn syrup, cook the mixture slightly beyond the jelly stage.

Jams and Preserves
With less sugar: Cut down the sugar to 3/4 of a pound of sugar for every pound of fruit. Notice that here the sugar is measured by weight rather than by cups. 1 pound of refined white sugar equals about 2 cups sugar. Cook jams and preserves somewhat longer when you cut the amount of sugar. With less sugar it takes a little longer cooking to get the product as thick as you want it.

With corn syrup or honey: Replace up to half the weight of sugar called for in the recipe with honey or corn syrup. To make substitutions by cups rather than by weight it is necessary to know that 1 pound of honey or corn syrup measures approximately 1 1/3 cups. If you are replacing half the measure of sugar called for with honey or corn syrup and half the sugar equals 1 pound of 2 cupsfuls you will need 2 cups of sugar and 1 1/3 cups honey or corn syrup. Cook somewhat longer than if sugar was used.

ARMY NEEDS RUBBER
The Army rolls on rubber—and fighting men walk on rubber, too. Army shoes have soles and heels made of reclaimed rubber. Reclaimed rubber is made from scrap rubber.

It takes about three quarters of a pound of this rubber to complete a pair of Army shoes.

The fighting forces need your scrap rubber. Take it to the nearest filling station—now.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE by George Harmon Coxe

YESTERDAY: Just meeting a little man named Perry Clarke has disturbed several people who are not easily shaken. It frightened Ward Allen; it roused instant dislike in Joyce Murdock, and it led Delia Stewart into a quarrel with Ward, when he was the last man she wanted to disagree with. Now Joyce has come home to find that Kent Murdock, her husband, has met his former wife Hester again. And Hester was married for a while to Clarke as well.

Chapter Five
"Go To Sleep!"

Kent Murdock heaved a sigh of relief and grinned. Not that he had done anything out of line, but it was sometimes hard to explain such things and he hadn't known quite how Joyce would take it. At first, that is. With Hester staying in town for two or three months, it was likely that Joyce would have to meet her some time. Still—

"There's one other thing," he said. "She's throwing a cocktail party tomorrow afternoon."

"Oh?"

"Dean Thorndike will be there—his outfit handles some of her investments, you know—and that will mean Ward Allen and Delia probably, and some others. She wants to meet you."

"And what did you tell her?"

"I told her I didn't know."

"But why, Kent? Of course we'll go. I'm dying to see her."

Murdock blinked and, unable to detect anything spurious in this spontaneity, decided there was still a lot he didn't know about women.

"Okay," he said. "I'll call her in the morning."

He watched her slip out of her negligee as he wound his watch, and saw that she wore one of his favorite nightgowns, a dark blue creation with wide shoulder straps and yards of skirt. Briefly, with elbows up, she gave a final shake to ash-blond hair that escaped straightness by the merest trace of a natural wave and had a two-tone effect where the sun bleached it around the edges; then she kicked off her mules and looked over at him, slim and straight and vital, with a lovely, rounded body and curves that were firm and clean in line.

He took note of all these things before he turned out the light because it was inevitable that he make comparisons tonight, just as it was inevitable that he think of Hester as he lay there staring up through the darkness.

His surprise at hearing her voice was as nothing compared to his surprise at seeing her. It did not seem possible that she could be the same person he had once married. It had been an impulsive step, that marriage, with Hester right out of the chorus of a musical comedy road-show that had closed in town.

Worried
"Kent."

Joyce's voice startled him and he wondered how long he had been thinking and whether he should pretend he was asleep.

"Yes," he said finally.

"I'm worried about Delia and Ward."

"Worried? Why?"
"Delia told me Ward left Caragua because of some trouble. Hester would know about it, wouldn't she? And that man Clarke—if you could have seen Ward's face when he looked up and saw him standing there. And afterwards—it frightened me."

Murdock grunted sleepily. "You're imagining things, aren't you?"
"I hope so." That was all Joyce said for quite a while and he thought she had finished until she said: "It would be just too awful if anything broke them up. They're so sweet together. Ward's a changed man since he met her. He was never really anything but a playboy until Delia came along. Now, well, he's different. He's working hard and he's—more human. I think he's a swell person."

"Sure he is," Murdock said.

"And Delia. She's so gay and brave, wanting to get back to England, and worrying about her father, and keeping busy nearly every day with the Red Cross and the Help The British Campaign business. And she's so in love with him. If I thought—"

"Look," Murdock said in that tolerantly gruff manner that men use when they are still in love, "will you go to sleep?"

"All right," Joyce said. "Good night, darling."

"Good night."

There was a long pause.

"But just the same—"

"Go to sleep!"

"I'm going to worry a little until I'm sure," Joyce said, and then Murdock heard her turn over and knew that she was through.

Party
The house that Hester Losado had taken proved to be a stone and brick monstrosity that must have been an architectural hybrid even in 1910. There was a cupola and circular bays and a porte-cochere, but the location was good and she had been able to rent it for a short period, fully satisfied.

"Um," Joyce said to Murdock. "The modern influence."

"Classy is the word," Murdock said.

A mousy little man admitted them and took Murdock's hat and coat while a maid helped Joyce with her things; then they moved down a sombre, age-darkened hall, dodged a suit of armor and stopped in a broad doorway that gave onto a long, high-ceilinged room, beyond which was visible a glassed-in addition, apparently a combination sun-room, conservatory, and music room.

The hum of conversation and hubbub of voices which met them at the doorway came from perhaps twenty people, who stood in little clusters, talking, smoking, gesturing with glasses in their hands. Deciding in her first glance that she recognized about half of them, Joyce found Ward Allen standing a short distance away, chatting with a blond woman whose back was turned but whose figure was sleek and streamlined.

Allen smiled and raised a hand. The woman glanced over her shoulder; then quickly turned and came towards them.

Joyce knew this was Hester Losado and in that first moment caught her breath, for this was not the woman she had pictured in her imagination, nor the one whom Kent had described; this woman was an instant, utter knockout and Joyce could only stare at her as she offered her hand.

"I'm so glad you came," Hester said. She had a low, throaty voice with an intimate quality and just the right inflection. "I hoped you would. I've been practically consumed with curiosity."

"I was curious too," Joyce said.

"Of course you were. And I might have known he would pick out someone like you." She smiled up at Murdock. "You're far luckier than I had imagined you'd be."

About thirty, Joyce thought, and on the surface, flawlessly turned out. Neither tall nor short, she had a magnificent figure, set off by a black crepe tea-gown that was long and straight-hanging from the hips and topped by a brief jacket.

A natural golden-yellow, her hair-do was the work of a master; so was her make-up. The oval face was smooth and unlined and there was a polished precision in every move, every gesture.

She found the light blue eyes upon her and smiled back.

"Shall we go to meet some people?" Hester asked. Then taking Murdock's arm: "You won't mind if I monopolize him for a little while? There's so much I'd like to know about you both."

Presently Joyce found herself with a Scotch and soda in her hand and Ward Allen at her elbow.

BRITISH BOMB EMDEN 3RD TIME

London, June 23 (AP)—British bombers smashed at the German Naval base of Emden for the third time in four days last night and it was reliably reported the attack was heavy and successful.

The scale of the attack was indicated by the report that six planes were reported missing from the operation.

The air ministry reported all explosives of the raiders were loosed in identification of targets, the air ministry said.

The weather was clear, apart from a slight ground haze, and well-placed flares gave valuable aid in identification of targets, the air ministry said.

Other RAF forces razed Nazi airfields and other targets in the low countries and France.

The raiders hammered powerfully at the submarine works, shipyards and the docks last night—the 78th raid on Emden since the war started.

One well-informed source said the Naval base "probably looks very much like Cologne, Rostock and Luebeck now."

Britain was free of Nazi raids last night.

Local Boards Handle Sugar Inventory Data

New instructions on file at the county rationing board office set up a procedure by which retailers' applications for allowable sugar inventory adjustments may be handled by the local rationing boards and need not be forwarded to the state office, thereby eliminating long periods of delay and meeting the retailers' problem of extra demand during the canning season.

Applications for permanent increases in the allowable inventory must be acted upon by the state office.

Miss Sara Clarke, superintendent of the Warner hospital, today acknowledged the donation of flowers from the Bendersville National bank. The flowers were presented to the hospital by the bank after the formal opening of the institution's remodeled building in Bendersville last Friday evening.

Need Control System For Bicycle Traffic

Harrisburg, June 23 (AP)—A modern system of control is needed in Pennsylvania, says T. Elmer Transeau, state safety bureau chief, to solve "a very serious bicycle traffic problem."

Transeau said the 1889 law passed when bicycles were used largely for pleasure isn't adequate since rationing and war-time transportation problems have brought out the two-wheelers in great numbers.

"A system of registration of bicycles by local officials would be a major step toward solution of the problem," Transeau said. "It would give bicycle owners a sense of responsibility and would provide a needed opportunity to inspect the mechanical safety of the machines."

Sixty persons were killed in accidents involving bikes in 1941 and 1,400 were injured in more than 1,200 mishaps. Thirteen riders were killed in the first four months of 1942.

RETAILERS

luloid buttons," "bone buttons" and the like. Mr. Wood suggested to the merchants that they list all of their articles under various general headings so that new articles may be listed under a particular heading without difficulty.

The new regulations of the O.P.A. will cause some changes in the stores of the county. Mr. Wood pointed out. Every store will have signs posted, giving the maximum price as well as the retail price of each article. The prices may be posted on the article to be sold; may be placed on a counter containing a number of like articles all of same price, or may be posted in a list over a counter, where a number of small objects, such as cigarettes, are sold. The price regulations also will make a change in most of the stores of the county in that they will enforce a more effective type of bookkeeping. Each merchant will have to retain all of his bills and will have to have marked on his bills the type of article to which the bill refers. In listing the various articles, it was pointed out, in the copy of the inventory sent to the O.P.A. office descriptions of the various articles must be included.

Protection for Merchants

Merchants of Gettysburg will be protected if manufacturers try to charge more than they did prior to March, Mr. Wood stated. If the merchant finds he is being charged more for a particular article than before he has only to complain to the O.P.A. office and the matter will then be taken to the proper authorities. The merchants were warned that they cannot pay more for their articles than they did before, because buying at a higher price is just as much against the O.P.A. regulations as selling at a higher price and is subject to the same penalties.

Following the discussion with Mr. Woods, who will be in Adams and York counties during the next three weeks to discuss with merchants problems caused by the O. P. A. regulations, Mr. Sherman, chairman of the meeting, read a series of communications between the Treasury department of the United States and the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce. The first letter dated May 26, asked the local chamber to determine how many retailers of Gettysburg and Adams county will participate with the nation-wide war bond and stamp sale to be held July 1. Under the plans set forth by the government every store in the country at 12 o'clock noon, July 1, will halt all of its regular business and for 15 minutes will engage in the sale of war bonds and stamps.

County to Cooperate

The Gettysburg Chamber wired back that it felt that "Adams county will cooperate 100 per cent" with the plan and told the national authorities that it would contact every merchant in the county to determine what percentage of the retailers will cooperate with the one day sale. So far every store contacted has agreed to cooperate, it was stated Monday night. A vote showed that every retailer present planned to hold the sale on July 1. Other merchants in the county will be contacted in the near future to obtain their agreement to the plan, Mr. Sherman said.

The following retail merchants attending the meeting were: C. D. Stallsmith, J. C. Shank, R. W. Wentz, J. Herbert Raymond, Lester Scott, Harold H. Reuning, Clifford H. Bucher, C. F. Daley, C. M. Sherman, F. A. Waybright, George M. Zerling, Mrs. A. S. Mills, Geraldine Leidig, Liest and Bucher, Charles Weaver, Mrs. Henrietta Blocher, Irving Brier, George Rebert, L. E. Jacobs, John C. Hartman, H. Wilbur Baker, D. E. Garfinkle, R. H. Lippy, Mary S. Stock, George R. Martin, W. A. Young, George A. Bender, J. Frank Dougherty, H. A. Sheely, H. C. Hartley, Ralph W. Guise, R. B. Kitzmiller, Mares Sherman, William Eckenrode, C. W. Littleton, and Carl Baum, all of Gettysburg; H. K. Reed, Biglerville; John W. Black, Heidelsburg; and E. D. Bushman and H. A. Hartman, both of Arendtsville.

WANTS UNIFORM TRUCKING ORDER

Harrisburg, June 23 (AP)—Asserting that a federal two-way load order favored common carrier trucks over contract carriers, the Pennsylvania Motor Truck association asked that it be made uniform for all trucks.

The order of the Office of Defense Transportation—effective July 1—bans empty return trips.

The association stand was set forth in a resolution adopted at its annual convention Saturday after local truckers making deliveries to neighboring states complained of the difficulty of obtaining return loads.

"Actually the government's objective is not to stop use of trucks, but to get more use out of trucks and make them last longer," Ted V. Rogers, president of the American Trucking associations, told the convention.

S. F. Niness, of Downingtown, was reelected president of the association; Harry L. Gormley, of New Castle, secretary, and John R. Eldridge, Harrisburg, treasurer. Vice presidents named were Edward Goggin, Harrisburg; Paul Keely, of New Castle, and R. T. Elliott, Philadelphia.

NAZI 'CHUTISTS HUNT TOBRUK'S LAST DEFENDERS

By HARRY CROCKETT

With British forces at Halfaya Pass, June 2 (Delayed) (AP)—Some of the defenders of fallen Tobruk still are fighting on their own, resolved to die rather than be captured.

They are the quarry of German parachute troops, the first used in all the bloody warfare on the desert.

The parachutists floated down from a moonlit sky at several points on the Tobruk outskirts, sifting into the numerous canyons between the escarpments in search of the British, Indians and South Africans who stayed on for last-ditch guerrilla fighting.

I tried to reach the closest perimeter of the battle area yesterday but I could not go further than Halfaya, the natural gateway between Libya and Egypt.

Columns of Smoke

From above the pass I could see towering columns of smoke from the direction of Capuzzo, the old Italian border fort where British soldiers evidently were being burned. I could hear the distant din of battle as both German and British columns roamed the no man's land out there from Port Capuzzo to Bardia.

The fall of Tobruk, the last major Allied fortress in Libya, came after two days of the fiercest desert fighting and a week of disheartening luck.

When a British armored force sought contact with the main Axis forces but drove into an anti-tank trap during a dust storm on June 13, the chain of events leading to the storming of Tobruk had come to a climax.

Axis men and armor finally closed around Tobruk five days later, fighting on the last two days under a blazing sun in heat reaching 120 degrees fahrenheit.

The main German mechanized forces were concentrated to the east, aided by constant daytime dive-bomber raids and high level bombardments by night.

Despite this blazing heat and fire, Britain's sun-scorched, sweating young defenders held their ground and met the German and Italian infantry hand-to-hand even after the enemy's tanks had driven through a five-mile-wide gap in the eastern defenses.

They stayed below in their steel and concrete underground forts until the tanks had rolled over them and into the minefield barrier with seeming disdain for the cost of men and machines as the Nazis pressed their greatest, most concentrated desert assault of all. Then they emerged to face the foe's machine-gun, rifle and grenade bearing troops.

The end obviously was near then. Earlier bombing of Tobruk's water tower had left the fortress' water situation in difficulty and the outnumbered defenders were tackling a heavier force of guns.

The RAF attacked time and again, smashing the enemy and his supplies without rest, but he was able to concentrate nearly all his air strength at that one key spot for the final effort while the RAF had numerous fronts to handle at the same time.

Some of the South Africans reached Tobruk from isolated positions in the Ain El Gazala area to the west under a gallant covering attack by British home forces.

In another remarkable preliminary, the British 15th division, with the Germans behind and Italians in front, smashed through three Italian divisions.

To preserve the element of surprise, they charged without benefit of artillery, led by 11 tanks with extra fuel cans strapped dangerously to their sides.

Child, 7, Begins 150th Week Of Sleep

Albany, N. Y., June 23 (AP)—Delicate seven-year-old Doreen Shook began Monday her 150th week of uninterrupted sleep.

Physicians see "no hope" of her ever awakening from the slumber, an unknown form of encephalitis, which struck suddenly August 14, 1939. The gentle, deathlike sleep, they say, has destroyed the pretty child's brain cells.

Nurses at the hospital for incurables keep flowers in Doreen's room, prop a toy panda bear by her side, arrange blue ribbons in her flaxen hair.

They feed her three times a day—corned beef hash, milk, ice cream—and she grows almost normally for a girl of her age.

"Sometimes," a nurse said, "I think she hears me as if she were in a dream and I were at great distance. She looks as though she wants to speak but can't. Often she cries, though."

Although the child's blue eyes open every morning, and the pupils respond to light, they are sightless.

Since the sickness they have never seen her mother, who made weekly trips to Doreen's site until her death in March. Or her father, who continues the visits though all hope for recovery is gone.
